AGM a Success

“Classy and Informative” says shareholder

This year’s Annual General Meeting was held in Toronto, Ontario at the Sheraton Center. Shareholders were greeted by the friendly faces of Firstgold Corp. staff and Directors as they entered the meeting room. As they entered they found a nice breakfast buffet and on each table they found a variety of Firstgold Corp. accessories including Firstgold Corp. golf balls, hats, and shirts.

The AGM began by addressing the formal agenda items, including the election of officers and approval of a new stock options plan. From there, the meeting moved to an update video, which allowed attendees to see the progress at the Relief Canyon Mine, as well as images of...

Editor’s Corner

I apologize for stealing Scott’s thunder this month, but I wanted to take a moment to thank you for all of the support I received.

While my surgery was minor, supposedly outpatient, there was some small complications that lead to a longer and more painful recovery. I appreciate your patience during the delay of the newsletter, and hope that we are now back on schedule.

Also, as a heads up, we are updating the website with some new pictures this week, so be sure to check them out.

Thanks,

Philip Easley-Bosley

AGM - Behind the Scenes

An Editorial Piece from a Firstgold Employee

Mark Ford is Firstgold Corp.’s Purchasing agent and is largely responsible for much of the “behind the scenes” effort at this year’s AGM. His reflections on the shareholders meeting have elicited so many side-splitting laughs around the office, that we decided to have him write out his short account for the benefit of our newsletter...

Honestly, my main recollection is that I was always a step behind and spent most of my time running in a dead sprint to keep up with our CEO. Once off of the flight to Canada, I expected to be greeted in Canada with a smile and hearty handshake and welcome to Canada. Imagine my surprise when instead...

AGM (Continued)

... plant construction, lab construction, and an introduction to Firstgold Corp.'s newest property, Horse Creek.

Closing the meeting was an extensive question and answer time during which shareholders had an opportunity to directly address CEO, Scott Dockter, and Steve Tibbals, Firstgold Corp.'s General Manager. Shareholders took the opportunity to look for updates on production prospects and timetables, as well as updates on the permitting, applications, and exploration opportunities.

After the meeting, shareholders, officers, employees, and Directors mingled and discussed the Company. The event was positive and encouraging for most in attendance. Firstgold Corp. encourages anyone who wasn't able to come to request the presentation information from the companies IR Firm Baystreet Capital at info@baystreetcap.com.

Firstgold Corp. Hires Engineer Permit Management Brought In-House

Firstgold Corp. recently hired Robert Craig as its Environmental Engineer. Mr. Craig previously served as Vice President of Alaska based Hyak Mining Company, Inc. for 20 years before resigning to work on Nevada based projects. He has a degree in Mining Engineering and is a registered Civil Engineer. He also specializes in Environmental Engineering, field compliance, NEPA preparation, and BLM Permitting.

Mr. Craig is an extraordinary asset to Firstgold Corp.'s management team and will serve to oversee Firstgold Corp.'s numerous environmental and permit projects.

...I was greeted with a frowning stare from a customs worker. My illusion of a hearty handshake turned to cold sweat as I desperately prayed to not have to go to the “other side” of the glass wall.

We arrived early to put the final touches on our presentation packets and meet with some shareholders. This was going to be easy and just a couple stops - until the power outage. With power out in a portion of the city, fear and panic gripped me as it was my head on the block if these didn't get finished in time. Fortunately, due to some incredible work from our friends at the McLellan Group, our DVD's were delivered in the nick of time to our hotel. After a mad dash (literally, why doesn't anyone drive in Canada?) through the busy city streets of Toronto, we found a print shop and the PowerPoint presentations were completed as well. Disaster averted.

The real highlight of the trip (other than the AGM itself) was the Director's dinner at a fine dining establishment in Toronto. Immediately upon arrival at this event I felt a wee bit out of place. My exposure to “sit down” fine dining establishments begins and ends with Arby's. I find my way to the seat I deem most inconspicuous and put my fancy napkin in my lap. Shortly thereafter I get summoned to a brief “sidebar” meeting where my Operations Manager instructs me, “Lay off the jokes, and try not to say anything stupid.” He encourages me to considering the venue and our distinguished company. I thank him for his pointed advice, and decide that silence and invisibility will be my best course of action. Not 30 seconds later, an esteemed investor and restaurateur looks to my end of the table and says “How are you enjoying the food. I bet you don't get this kind of food in Nevada do you?” Instinctively I reply “The food is great! Back home I usually eat out of a can”. This comment was greeted by 5 seconds of dead silence. I looked to my boss, who sat in awe shaking his head. I sheepishly asked, “You meant like that didn't you?” Well long story short I made it through the rest of the dinner without incident and I am still employed at Firstgold Corp. Yet another disaster averted.

In closing, I have a fond appreciation of the beautiful country of Canada and specifically the great city of Toronto. I hope all who attended this year's annual shareholder's meeting got as much out of it as I did. The shareholders I had the pleasure of speaking with seemed genuinely excited about the things to come in the near future from Firstgold Corp. I look forward to meeting with every again next year. Look for me and say hi I'll be the guy making coffee or sweeping the floor. ~Mark Ford
